

AT REST.

Mourning Thousands Greet the Harrison Funeral Train.

The Old Church Thronged With Sorrowing Friends of the Family.

The Simple But Impressive Rites of the Presbyterian Church - Mrs. Harrison Tenderly Laid to Rest in the Grave in Crown Hill Cemetery.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 29.—President Harrison and the grief-stricken members of his personal and official family arrived here Friday morning for the sad purpose of placing the remains of Mrs. Harrison to eternal rest in the place she lovingly called her home. The elegantly equipped special conveying the party arrived here at 9:30 o'clock promptly on schedule time and was greeted by thousands of sympathetic friends and admirers. They occupied all points of vantage along the road and crowded the station to its utmost capacity.

The train arrived at Indianapolis, a delay of half an hour was caused in transferring from the funeral car the wealth of floral emblems that typified the love and devotion of hundreds of friends.

Everything being in readiness the casket was lifted and slowly and reverently the cortege moved out through the sheds, through the Union station to the carriages in waiting. The casket was borne by John B. Elam, the president's law partner, Judge Woods, Hon. E. B. Martindale, Gen. Lew Wallace, Dr. Allen and T. P. Haughey.

In front of the pallbearers were Judge Niblack and W. P. Fishback, and in the rear Joseph G. McClain and John R. Elder, and following them the sorrowing relatives and the president's official family.

When the funeral procession arrived at the church a crowd of 5,000 people thronged the sidewalks and pushed into the streets, not boisterously, but with a show of the most intense interest. The police had no difficulty in pushing the crowds back, and the casket was lifted and borne into the church without incident of moment.

The services were characterized by the greatest simplicity. As the coffin was carried up the aisle and deposited in front of the chancel the organ pealed forth a soft melody. The choir then sang "Lead Kindly Light," with beautiful effect, and Dr. Haines offered a short invocation and read a selection from the Scriptures. He then preached the funeral discourse upon the text: "Therefore comfort one another with these words."

At the conclusion of the services the funeral procession, which was more than a mile in length, followed the remains to Crown Hill cemetery, where, with a simple prayer and short address, the body was lowered into the grave.

Soon after the train arrived and in accordance with the request of the president the casket was opened for a few minutes in order that he, as well as his most immediate kindred, could look for the last time on the features of her now stilled in death, whom all loved so well. Her face had a calm, peaceful expression and she seemed as though merely asleep. It was a sad moment for the president, and he was nearly overcome. Some of the others were so prostrated with grief that it was some minutes before they were able to undergo the trying ordeal of facing the public as they were compelled to do in going to their carriages.

NITRO-GLYCERINE EXPLODES.

Two Men Toss to Pieces, and Several Injured.

LIMA, O., Oct. 29.—The nitro-glycerine factory, two miles from town, has just gone up with a bang that shook the buildings and smashed glass all over town. The glycerine explosion Friday killed Andrew Shultz. His body was blown to pieces, only his head being found.

Injured—Wm. Porter, badly hurt, not fatal; Tom Mateus, dangerously injured, and Ben Dowe, leg blown off. The two latter will probably die.

The farm house of William Hooker, 1800 yards from the scene, was totally wrecked and a servant girl injured by falling debris. The farm house of Thomas Placer, a half-mile above the Hooker homestead, was also badly damaged.

Suits for Damages.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—In the last few days six persons have been asphyxiated by foul gas furnished by a Hyde Park gas company. Investigation shows that the company's works have not been able to supply sufficient pressure, and that the gas would flicker out during the night. Heavy damage suits are to be brought against the gas company.

Wisconsin Apportionment Finished.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 29.—The apportionment bill, as adopted by the democratic caucus, with a single exception, passed both houses, all democrats voting except Senator Krueger and Assemblyman Neal Brown. The governor Thursday signed the bill. The law gives the democrats a majority of 11 or 14 on joint ballot.

Just as we are going to press by the accidental discharge of a rifle in the hardware store of Owens, Mitchel & Co. Helen, eleven-year-old daughter of Simon Nelson, was wounded in the leg and little Miss Kirk, daughter of Jailer R. C. Kirk, slightly hurt. It was purely an accident and no blame attaches to anyone. It is hoped that a closer examination will allay all fear of danger.

Do You Know

That a large percentage of deaths in this country are caused by consumption and lung trouble? A little cold neglected in the beginning often terminates in consumption. Every time you cough you increase the trouble, and an inflammation was soon started, which is difficult to control. There is one remedy that cures quickly every kind of a cough. That is Dr. Hale's Household Cough Cure. It is the best. Are you not entitled to the best? For sale at 25c and 50c a bottle at Power & Reynolds's Drugstore.

Death of an Ex-Magistrate.

John McAuliffe, a resident of this city forty years ago, died in the early part of this week at Moberly, Mo. His remains were brought to his old home and were interred at Washington yesterday.

The deceased was connected with many of the prominent Irish families of this county. Charles McAuliffe of this city is his son and Timothy McAuliffe of this county his brother. He left Maysville in 1854 and never returned.

Under Guard.

Ashland News.—The C. and O. crossing at Thirty-ninth street and Winchester avenue is under guard day and night. This is done to prevent the Electric Street Car Company from crossing the tracks at that point. Is this fair after all Ashland has done and is liable to do for the C. and O. Railroad at this point? It looks very much like "small potatoes and few in the bill," and if this course is to be pursued the C. and O. Railroad Company will find out that Ashland can look after her own interests at all events.

Private Theatricals at Danville.

Harry C. Curran, formerly of this city, is devoting some of his time to amateur theatricals at Danville. The Advocate says: Arrangements are being perfected under the direction of Harry C. Curran for the production at the Danville Opera-house at an early date of the beautiful drama, "Esmaralda," written by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy." The cast will be composed of Danville society people, and the proceeds of the entertainment will be donated to the Athletic Association of Center College.

Horace Cochran of this city, a student of Center College, is also connected with the enterprise.

Goodbye Boys.

After spending several weeks among the pretty girls, fast horses and other innumerable attractions of which Kentucky boasts, Henry Dickson of Charleston, W. Va., left for his home last night accompanied by his friend Ashby Burke.

Both of these young gentlemen are well known in Maysville and their friends here are numerous. They have visited us frequently, but their departure was never characterized by such a demonstration of the esteem in which they are held as that of last night.

On their way to the depot shortly before train time they were intercepted at the corner of Wall street where a crowd of the boys were in waiting and escorted the remainder of the way in hospitable style. The colored orchestra was along and being placed at the head of the procession struck up a lively marching air. A procession was hastily formed and the parade down Second street attracted much attention and many small boys.

Upon the arrival at the depot the musicians were stationed on the platform and several appropriate pieces were rendered. Loud calls were made for a speech, but neither one of the departing guests had the temerity to respond. Neither one wanted to go and both declared their intention of returning Christmas. Dickson may run down Thanksgiving.

At last the train left, the band played "It's all over now," and the crowd shouted "They're off."

A Cholera Scare.

A reported outbreak of cholera at Helmetta, N. J., created much excitement in that vicinity. Investigation showed that the disease was not cholera but a violent dysentery, which is almost as severe and dangerous as cholera. Mr. Walter Willard, a prominent merchant of Jamesburg, two miles from Helmetta, says Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy has given great satisfaction in the most severe cases of dysentery. It is certainly one of the best things made. For sale by Power & Reynolds, Druggists.

An Event of Yesterday.

There was an unfortunate occurrence on Court street shortly before noon yesterday which involved two of the best known young men in the city, Allan D. Cole and G. W. Blatterman, Jr.

It is not the intention of THE LEDGER to criticize the action of anyone or to inquire into and comment on the causes which led to the affair. Blows were struck and the breach between the two only widened.

Differences between men in most instances could be healed and friendship restored if human temper, the most uncontrollable element of nature, could be held in check.

Resort to violence as a means of avenging wrong, if not directly personal, should always be avoided.

Depose on Advertising.

The famous orator and railway magnate, Chanuncy Depew, says of advertising:

"When I say that every enterprise, every business, and I might add every institution must be advertised in order to be a success, I only voice the general opinion of those who are most capable of judging. To talk in any other strain would be madness."

"Few, if any, of our American institutions have made more rapid and successful strides during recent years, and especially during the past decade, than general advertising. It has increased, it has been perfected, the field has been enlarged, a host of new ideas have been and are constantly being introduced, until to-day advertising is one of the most important elements essential to commercial success."

Mr. Depew attributes much of the success of leading railroads to their immense amount of advertising, the most effective of which is through the newspapers.

CONFLAGRATION

Milwaukee Is Visited by a Destructive Fire.

Acres of Valuable Business and Residence Property Destroyed.

A Gale Sweeps Forward a Wall of Flame—Dynamite Used in the Effort to Check the Blaze—Loss Estimated at Seven Million Dollars.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 29.—Scores of blocks of Milwaukee's largest business firms, together with hundreds of frame houses, were destroyed by fire Friday night.

Commencing at 5:20 o'clock an oil establishment on East Water street near the river, flames, driven by the fearful hurricane which was blowing, spread with frightful rapidity to the lake, over half a mile to the east.

It is impossible to estimate the loss with any degree of accuracy. Even a complete list of the big business houses can not be obtained, while to these must be added the small individual losses of hundreds of small property owners, whose houses and household goods have been destroyed. As it is, the loss will probably amount to $7,000,000 or $10,000,000.

The tract burned is over half a mile wide and a mile north and south, commencing in the establishment of the Union Oil Co. The fire was burning fiercely when the city department reached the scene. Owing to the hurricane that was blowing the men were utterly unable to do anything, and for any practical results might as well have done nothing. In spite of this the men worked bravely and did every thing in their power, risking their lives in the burning buildings, and endeavoring, by tearing down blocks in advance of the path, to check it. This was in vain, and all night long the flames continued along their way from the establishment on East Water street, where the blaze started. The path of the fire was in the shape of an immense V, the connecting point of the two arms being in the oil establishment, while one line extended directly east to the lake, the other running to the lake in a southerly direction through immense factories from four to seven stories high, which were supposed to be fire proof, the flames spread with as much ease as though they were frame cottages, which they attacked farther east. After wiping out the factories and wholesale establishments, the fire found easy prey in the scores of blocks filled with frame houses, which extend east of Milwaukee street. From these the flames leaped to the freight house of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore and Western railroad. These caught on the extreme southern end and in a moment were ablaze along their whole length, over two blocks. Adjoining the depots were the freight yards of the same railroad as well as of the Chicago and North-western. These yards were filled with hundreds of loaded cars, all of which was quickly consumed.

It was in these yards that some of the most pitiful sights were seen. In one place half a dozen poultry cars full of ducks and chickens were roasted alive. As soon as the destruction of the railroad yards was assured, the wind, as though prompted by malice, veered from west to north. Had it remained in the west the fire would have exhausted itself in the lake. Chief Foley kept the fire confined to one block on East Water street until 7 o'clock, when it got away from him and leaped across the street and began a rapid march toward Lake Michigan, six blocks away, cutting down in short order the following stores: F. Dohem & Co., wholesale drugs; M. Bloch, wholesale liquors; Bud & Kipp's seven-story building, furniture factory; Roundy, Peckham & Co., wholesale grocers; Jacob Wellauer & Co., wholesale grocers; Johnson Bros' cracker factory (American Biscuit Co.), and the National Distilling Co.

The entire lower part of the Third ward, inhabited largely by poor Irish families, is devastated. About 300 cottages have been destroyed, and the poor people are wandering about the streets loudly lamenting their losses. Alarms came in every few minutes from parts of the city widely separated, and it is thought that fire bugs helped in the work of destruction. The elegant residence of L. F. Hodz, a member of the board of trade, at Ninth and Cedar streets, two miles from the place where the fire started, has been destroyed. At 9 o'clock two fatalities had been reported—one fireman killed and a woman suffocated. The gas works were then burning and frequent explosions occurred that shook the whole city.

Many of the scenes of the great fire of 1871 in Chicago were enacted—the dynamite explosions, the leaping flames and crumbling walls adding to the terror of the situation. It is reported that four of the crew of the life-saving station were killed by a falling wall coming to the assistance of the fire department. The light-house squadron and the Fourth battalion have been called out to guard property. At midnight all the southern section of Milwaukee is in ruins and the dreadful conflagration was still in progress.

In response to the call upon her for aid, Chicago sent several fire companies on a special train, and they rendered most valuable assistance. At 2:40 Saturday morning the fire was under control.
